Rohan, a young man who had studied in the city, returned to Niranjan with the hope of improving conditions. He proposed modernizing their farming techniques by introducing irrigation, planting drought-resistant crops, and building a road to connect the village with nearby towns. At first, the elders resisted, reluctant to change their age-old ways. But Rohan persisted, and gradually, the village transformed. The new methods revived the land, and the road allowed for trade with neighboring towns.

He put his brush in the paint and moved it across the top of fence. He did this again and then looked at how little was painted and how much more needed to be painted before he could be free. He rested on a box, feeling discouraged.

Jim came out of the house with a water bucket. In the past Tom never liked to go to the well for water. But now it looked like a better job than painting the fence. Children were always at the wall waiting for water. As they waited, they played, had fights, rested and talked. Jim always stayed for more than an hour.
